

Please do not overturn New Jersey's "do not call" law. You have an aging country where people not only have physical disabilities, but are subject to the influence of friendly strangers who are will to spend time to chat them our of their life's savings. Isn't my home my castle. I can put up a sign saying on my door saying "Do not ring bell if a vendor. I do not buy from door-to-door solitictors." There is no freedom of speech involved when vendors invade my home by telephone. Telephone solicitations should be prohibited. If you want to do something worthwhile devote your efforts to what is being broadcast over television during family hours.
